

CAPACITY-BUILDING: Training for court officers begins at FJA
Supportive Court Officers are vital to court operations: DG, FJA

ISLAMABAD: A capacity building training course for officers of the Apex court and High courts began at the Federal Judicial Academy here on January 22, 2018.

FJA Director General Fakhar Hayat while inaugurating a one-week training course on “Capacity Building of Supportive Court Officers” talked about the subjects that will be part of the training aimed at improving the capacity of judicial officers of the Supreme Court and high courts of all federating units for inexpensive and expeditious dispensation of justice and strengthen the justice system.

Mr. Fakhar Hayat stated that, “Supportive Court Officers are vital to court operations; without improving their personal and professional competencies and skills, courts are hard pressed to meet citizens’ needs.”

“This training is practical and realistic. It is purpose-based type of training to increase productivity of our court supporting officers who support the administration of the justice system. Courts cannot carry out their functions without these personnel, including supporting court officers, and the effectiveness and efficiency of justice is directly tied to personnel competence. I know that we have very participation of very experienced officers in this training, but his training will go a long way to freshen up their skills and enhance competences,” DG concluded.

Thirty five officers from all over Pakistan and Azad Jammu and Kashmir are attending this weeklong course at the Academy.
